

Supervised release order

What is a supervised release order?

It is the community part of your detention order.

You were found guilty of your offence.

1. You go to youth detention for most of your sentence
(50-70%).

2. You finish your order while you live in the community
(30-50%).

This may be different if you turn 18 years old when you are in detention or if you have served all the days of your detention order in custody.

The YJ officer will tell you if this applies to you.

A youth justice officer (or YJ officer) will supervise you during this order.

A few weeks before you leave detention

You will meet with a YJ officer.

Your parents or carers will be invited.

The YJ officers will talk to you about:

- what you need to do when you get out

- the days you need to see the YJ officer

- how they can help you stick to your order

They will ask you to sign your name on the order.

After you leave detention

You need to meet with the community YJ officer in the youth justice service centre.

Your parents or carers will be invited.

The YJ officer will talk to you about:

- your order
- why you did the offence

- the days you need to see the YJ officer

- how they can help you finish your order.

Rules

You need to follow the rules.

You must:

- not break the law

- attend programs

- report to your YJ officer

- let your YJ officer visit you.

You must tell your YJ officer within 2 days if you:

- move house

- change schools

- change jobs.

You must tell and give lots of time to the YJ officer if you want to leave Queensland.

Your YJ officer needs to say 'yes'.

A YJ officer may give you extra things for you to do on your order. Extra things like:

- help to get off drugs and alcohol

- mental health help

What if I break the rules

Your YJ officer will tell you what happens if you break the rules.

If you break a rule, your YJ officer will give you a warning letter.

If you keep breaking the rules, you will go back to court.

The court will decide if you will stay on a supervised release order.

You must stay out of trouble when you are on a supervised release order.

If you offend again, the court may decide you have breached your order.

This means the court gave you rules but you did not follow the rules.

The court may send you back to detention.
