

Education, Training and Employment Schedule (ETES) for school-based apprenticeships and traineeships (SATs)

Using this ETES template

It is a requirement for each school-based apprenticeship and traineeship that the employer, apprentice/trainee, school and supervising registered training organisation (SRTO) discuss and negotiate the responsibilities and obligations of each party in respect of how the school-based arrangement will operate. All the parties need to agree on how the apprenticeship/traineeship will impact on the student's school timetable, and ensure the quantities of work and SRTO training meet requirements. The agreed arrangements must be captured in a way that can be reviewed by the Department of Employment, Small Business and Training (DESBT), if required.

This template is provided to assist the stakeholders to record the agreed arrangements for integrated school studies, workplace training and training delivered by the SRTO. The individual school sectors may determine whether or not they require their schools to use this template or capture the details in some other way.

The stakeholders should retain a copy of the agreed arrangements for reference. A copy may be attached to the apprentice/trainee's training plan or training record.

If there is a change in circumstances which will have an on-going impact on the student's school, work and training obligations, the parties must be informed and agree to any amendments to the schedule.

Further information can be found at www.desbt.qld.gov.au/training/apprentices or by phoning Apprenticeships Info on 1800 210 210.

Work, training and school impact assessment

A SAT is a contract of training and paid employment where a school student's timetable or curriculum reflects a combination of work, training and school study, which together lead to the award of a Queensland Certificate of Education (QCE) or the equivalent and progress towards or completion of a vocational qualification.

To be registered as a SAT, the training and/or work elements of the apprenticeship or traineeship MUST impact on the student's school timetable. This may occur in the following manner:

- paid employment undertaken during normal school hours
- training undertaken during normal school hours
- reducing the number of subjects studied to allow the student to work and/or train.

Note: Employers are required to provide school-based apprentices/trainees with a minimum of 375 hours (50 days) paid employment over each 12 month period. Electrotechnology school-based apprentices are required to be given a minimum of 600 hours (80 days) of paid employment over each 12 month period. For a school-based trainee to be eligible for completion they MUST have met the minimum paid employment requirement of 50 days of paid employment for each year of the equivalent full-time nominal term of the traineeship. The nominal term is based on the duration (months) as indicated on QTIS for a full time training contract specific to the traineeship

The work, training and school impact assessment should indicate for each school period, whether the student will be undertaking a specified school subject, paid work activities (indicate with a W), or undertaking apprenticeship/traineeship training activities (indicate with a T).

Queensland Government contribution to training cost – User Choice program

Australian Apprenticeship Support Network providers and SRTOs must ensure that all parties are aware of the implications of the User Choice policy, particularly as it pertains to apprentices and trainees accessing multiple government contributions. Apprentices and trainees, including school-based, can receive only a maximum of two government contributions; a second qualification will be funded only if it is a Priority One qualification, has a higher priority ranking than the first qualification that has been completed, or was undertaken subsequent to a student having completed a qualification under the Skilling Queenslanders for Work initiative.

Students must make informed decisions about which qualifications they undertake as the decision will affect their access to further funding under the User Choice program.

Further information regarding the funding of apprenticeships and traineeships is available at www.desbt.qld.gov.au/training/employers/funding/apprenticeship/userchoice.

This section may be used to indicate the agreement of the stakeholders.
